IDENTIFIED BY CLERKS

Kansas City and Other Hotel Runners Point Out McManigal as One "J. W. McGraw."

Indianapolis, Oct. 10.—For the first time since he confessed to dynamiting, Ortie McManigal, before the jury in the dynamiting conspiracy trial, was identified by hotel clerks as having visited various cities at the times when the explosions occurred.

H. L. Pearce, clerk of the hotel in Kansas City, Mo., pointed McManigal out in the courtroom today as the man who registered as "J. W. McGraw" three days before McManigal blew up a portion of the $15,000,000 bridge across the Missouri.

The line of testimony followed by the government tender to corroborate McManigal's confession that he actually caused the explosions detailed in his confession, and for which the government alleges he received $200 per job from the Structural Ironworkers' executive board.

Hotel clerks from Superior and Rochester, Pa., also identified McManigal. The activities of James B. McNamara on his return to Indianapolis after blowing up the Los Angeles Times were also traced by hotel registers.
